THE INGALLS FIGHT

A FIERCE BATTLE LASTING ALMOST AN HOUR.

THREE BRAVE OFFICERS KILLED.

Two Hystanders Killed and Two Others Wounded—Two Bandits Wounded But Got Away—The Prisoners Arrested Brought to Town.

Chief Johnny Hale and Deputy Marshals John Hixon, Jim Masterson and possemen arrived from Ingalls Sunday night, bringing Nibbs, alias "Arkansas Tom," George Ransom, Sherman Sanders and M. Nix, who were placed in the Federal jail charged with murder.

Mr. Hale was seen at the United States marshal's office last night and related in a graphic manner the details of the terrible fight that occurred between the deputies and outlaws last Friday morning.

The gang which the officers were after—the remnants of the Dalton and Starr bands of robbers—have made headquarters at Ingalls all summer. A portion of the citizens are in full sympathy with them, lending every assistance in the way of information whenever officers came into the neighborhood. Others have been so terrorized by the gang that they have kept silent on the depredations committed, giving the outlaws their own way.

For the past four weeks Deputy John Hixon has had a party, composed of himself, Masterson, Lefe Shadley, El Thompson, W. C. Roberts and Ike Steel, the latter four possemen, after the bands, for several of whom there are large rewards, but could not catch them outside of Ingalls. Becoming impatient, another party headed by Deputy Hixon and composed of Possemen Dick Speed, Janson Cox, a brother of Hixon and two others were added to Hixon's force and a raid was determined upon.

Friday morning the two parties separated so as to come into Ingalls from different directions. They rode in white topped covered wagons, similar to those used by boomers, so as not to attract attention. It seems, however, that the outlaws knew the plans of the officers, for when Hixon's party drove into the town, the gang which was in Ransom's saloon, opened fire on them. Hixon and his men returned the shots, at the same time seeking shelter behind other buildings.

When the shooting began Hixon's party was more than a block away. They got out of the wagon and opened fire on the saloon, making it so hot the robbers ran to the stable, a block away, where their horses were kept. At this point the battle was renewed, Deputy Shadley wounding one of the robbers and several horses, among them two belonging to the robbers. Finding that it was impossible to stay at the stable the gang mounted horses and made a bold dash for liberty.

The Hixon party guarded the only avenue of escape and as the outlaws passed near them Bill Dalton was shot off his horse. He remounted the animal and was getting away when he was shot the second time, he being obliged to crawl on his hands and knees over an embankment. A companion pulled Dalton up in front of him and carried him away. Newcomb, or "Blind Creek" as he is called, was also wounded in the side, but managed to retain his seat in his saddle and get away.

While the fight was going on, what lasted almost an hour, there was deadly work being done from some source, the officers could not tell where. It afterwards developed that one of the band—Arkansas Tom—was in the second story of the hotel, where he could get range upon the officers without being discovered. Pushing his Winchester through the windows he shot Deputy Dick Speed, Hixon and Lefe Shadley, mortally wounding them, and also killing a bystander named Simmons.

In addition to those mentioned, a Mr. Walker of Cushing was shot in the lungs, from which he cannot recover; Ransom's barber, named Murry, shot in the arm, breaking it; Ransom's father, shot in the leg.

After the battle was over a party was made up to pursue the bandits, but it was impossible to pursue them but a short distance. At one creek crossing a bloody pool was found where they had stopped to wash their wounds, and another place was found in a corn field where they had stopped to rest, but the farmers in that country, either through fear or sympathy, would keep sending the officers in the wrong direction from that taken by the bandits. The general opinion seemed to prevail that they had sought refuge in the Creek nation. Nibbs, who did the killing, was arrested only after every cartridge he had in his belt had been fired.

While the band has not been captured, their rendezvous has been broken up and they will be obliged to seek other quarters. The officers have determined this outfit shall be taken and it is only a question of a few more weeks when those left alive will be in jail.

will drive across the strip to Arkansas City, giving him an opportunity to investigate the report that the land is filled with prospecting parties. Should he find any sooner on the lands he will direct the attention of the cavalry to their failure in the performance of their duties.

The judge will visit the six principal booth locations and endeavor to estimate the number that will be at each so as to judge how large a force of clerks it will require to handle the business. He will return to Guthrie the last of the week.

Township 10.

No drought here, but fine growing weather continues and from the present outlook Oklahoma bids fair to be among the finest lands in America for agriculture. No wonder the home-seeker is making every effort possible to make sure his home in the next opening. Many no doubt will be disappointed but many will, as in the first Oklahoma opening, in a few short years have valuable farms.

Seeding, corn cutting, threshing, hay-making, and harvesting of millet with other farm work, are moving on. The fever among a few of the cattle is causing some uneasiness but it is hoped will not prove serious.

The most interesting of all concerned seems to be the proclamation and how to make the most money of every article disposable and dispose of every article of hindrance preparatory to the race for a new home.

We are sorry to learn that trouble existing in our country has been taken to court to be righted. But since it is the case, hope each offender will receive his punishment in a way that will prove beneficial to them in the future. For as yet our new country has very little surplus money and neighbors not on friendly terms is not very commendable.

POLICE COURT.

Some Awful Drunks and the Penalties Paid Thereon.

Joe Jones was charged in Saturday night and sweat it out till yesterday morning, when he was brought before his honor and assessed $10 for his unmanly conduct. He was drunk to a finish.

Arthur Allen was dragged in Sunday night. O Lord, how drunk he was. He paid yesterday morning the substantial amount of $10 toward the support of the municipal government.

A pair of "paranoids" named Tom Treeman and W. J. Jackson got on a mutual good fellowship drunk to an unseemly excess on the holy Sabbath day. They together paid toward the support of widows and orphans the sum of $10.50.

Minor's Good Man.

El Reno Herald: The Herald is confident that Governor Ransom will make no mistake in appointing Michael Elchhoff, cashier of the State Exchange bank, to the office of territorial treasurer to succeed Hon. Samuel Murphy, whom it is understood will soon send in his resignation. Mr. Elchhoff is a good citizen, an honorable gentleman and a capable financier. And from these facts he is an El Reno candidate, and this city demands recognition. El Reno does not ask any special favors, she simply insists on having her just recognition in the distribution of territorial patronage. The Herald believes that El Reno deserves and has a right to expect the appointment of Mr. Elchhoff as treasurer of this territory at the hands of his excellency, Governor Ransom.

A Comment on the Opinion.

The Oklahoma Daily State Capital, very properly says: A splendid thing—a good representative of Guthrie in all its greatness. A copy of the Columbian edition of THE DAILY LEADER is at hand. It contains twenty pages and is profuse in illustrations. The city and its surroundings are well shown up. The paper throughout is a beauty. It was gotten up in a literary way, by J. Roy Williams, and reflects great credit on him and on the enterprise of our neighbor, THE LEADER. The people should send these papers away liberally, for no better exposition of the town was ever made.

The well known firm of Morgan & Panoost, composed of John L. Panoost and Dick T. Morgan, author of Morgan's Manual of the United States Homestead and Townsite Laws, have made arrangements to open an office at Perry, where the land office for the eastern part of the strip is to be located. The wide experience and reputation of this firm insures them a large patronage.

Change of Partnership.

The partnership heretofore existing between Messrs. Black & Rogers, representing the Anheuser-Busch brewing association in Oklahoma territory, has been dissolved by mutual consent. Mr. Rogers retiring and Mr. Black continuing the business under the firm name of R. W. Black.

Mr. Black has taken proper steps to open houses at the different towns in the strip, where the Anheuser-Busch beer and the products of his Guthrie carbonating works will enter the market, and knowing Mr. Black's business tact and energy we bespeak for him like success in the new opened country as the firm had in the older part of the territory.
